Practical, yet friendly and playful… Through an exploration of geometry and asymmetry, the Conic lamp from the bright talent of Thomas Bentzen sports a cone-shaped shade in painted metal, cocked at a pleasingly jaunty angle. Thomas Bentzen's work ranges from tableware to interior design, from furniture to industrial design. He is a co-founder of the Copenhagen-based design collective Remove, and by his own admission "obsessed with materials and their limits, by form and functionality and by the durability of design."

About the Designer
Thomas Bentzen established his Copenhagen design studio in 2010. His work ranges from tableware to interior design, from furniture to industrial design. "My passion is to create objects that engage and create curiosity," says Thomas. "Objects that are functional and simple and meet the human need." He is co-founder of the Copenhagen-based design collective REMOVE, and by his own admission is "obsessed with materials and their limits and the durability of design".
